Description

The church in Hătuica was built in the 15th century in Gothic style and dedicated to All Saints, it was remodeled in the Baroque era. When repairing the damage caused by the earthquake of 1802, the parish expanded the church. The church organ was built in 1881 by István Kolonics.

The architectural specialty of the parish is the belfry at the entrance, built in 1668 from wood and covered with a pitched roof, which is the oldest monument of its kind in Covasna.
